Author's Notes:
Slightly crack-tastic, but who cares!

"Pass the sugar, please, James," Lars said, eyes fixed firmly on his coffee cup.

"Sure thing, honey." James batted the sugar shaker along their diner table. Lars favoured him with a mega-watt smile.

"What?" James hunched his shoulders and glared at Kirk and Jason's shellshocked expressions.

Over the next week 'babe', 'gorgeous', 'snookums-pookums' all tripped off James's tongue with terrifying ease until he reached his zenith with the unforgettable, "My little Danish pastry," delivered with a completely straight face... in front of a fucking reporter from motherfucking Metal Edge.

Lars was beginning to regret bitching James into being more affectionate.
